LOYOLA DIRECTOR COMMENDED BY INTERNATIONAL COUNCIL

Loyola of Montreal's Director of Physical Education and Athletics Ed Enos has been commended by the International Council on Health, Physical Education and Recreation for his recently published article entitled, "A Philosophical Approach to Modern Day Physical Education and Athletics". Germany's Dr. Kinrad Paschen on behalf of the International body's Executive Committee in his letter of commendation stated that the article "was a perceptive reflection of contemporary times and had made a significant contribution to the international scene.

Among the points Enos makes in his manuscript pertains to violence in sports and society. Loyola's P.E. Director contends that a lust for violence often comes from those who have not participated in sports and who reject all such games with rules as cramping their freedom. He feels training and competition rather than breed violence curtails and properly channels it. Enos states further that "men and male youth in particular need certain forms of violence to encourage manliness and courage. Many seemingly ferocious athletes are gentle lambs".
